Unskirted Wool Imports Increasing at Boston from Australia, New Zealand and South Africa.

A large proportion of the buying in the Boston market has been for material for special fabrics, such as astrachan goods and various novelty yarns. Some of the worsted spinners are even buying tops, the long combedout fibers to be spun into yarn, and are also buyin gyarns, putting them into their stock, so that they may be well stivated in the fall and ready to make prompt delivery. The call is still for medium wools, which are sold at prices asked with few, if any, recessions.
While the medium worsted wools are wanted now, the demand for medium wools for woolen purposes is expected to develop later, because the coming type will undoubtedly be another woolen goods year, because of high prices of worsteds and the demand for lower priced clothing.

Japan Silk Cocoon Prospects Japanese sericulturists, who have had slack business for the last few years, are encouraged by the bright prospects for a good summer cocoon gathering this year, says Commercial Attache Abbott, Tokio. The satisfactory spring cocoon crop and a good growth of mulberry leaves leads to the expectation that production will soon be restored to normal. Keen competition for business prevails in practically all lines, and this has a tendency to hold down the prices of finished good sepite the advances that have been made in raw materials content, thought that prices of finished goods are more likely to advance than to decline. Manufacturers are complaining of a lack of adequate profits. Large concerns in various lines, because of their proportionately low overhead, have set a pace on prices that their smaller competitors find it had their smaller competitors find it had the and are placing more of their business with the big producers, which makes the hard for the smaller manufacturers and operators to maintain a steady volume of business.

Leather

Leather demand was more active last week. Sole leather was active, although patent leather suffered a slight abatement locally. The fall styles display a good line of satins and patent shoes, so it is unlikely that present dullness in patents will continue. Belting butts advanced 2 cents a pound and sheepskin also showed an upward tendency in prices. City calfskins dropped 5 cents a pound in the early part of the week, but advanced 5 cents Saturday. Tanneries are having some difficulties in disposing of lightweight calfskins. Shoe factories are busy. Tanners have been unable to get better prices from the leather manufacturers. The latter have tried more or less unsuccessfully to advance prices of leather to shoe manufacturers say that business conditions do not warrant advances in shoe prices and they are attempting to keep down prices of raw materials.

Raw silk fluctuated within narrow limit last week, and on the whole, closed with a firmer tone than at the previous week-end. Local manufacturers are buying raw silk sparingly, both because of the continuation of caution in their operations and because of the threatening labor troubles in their mills, together with the possibility of a coal shortage that any force mill curtailment later on.

Woolens

The first rush of buying of woolens and worsted for spring, 1923, has subsided somewhat and sellers are now awaiting reorders. A slight lull in the men's clothing manufacturery operations at present has reacted to some extent upon the cloth trade. Raw wool, however, remains firm, and there are no indications of softening goods.

More Than A First Mortgage

Miller Bonds, Paying 7% or 71/2% have additional safeguards

When you buy a first mortgage bond, do you consider only the physical value of the property securing it, or do you also consider the ability of the borrower to pay interest and principal as due? Safety and satisfaction depend not merely on the property pledged, but on the provision made for meeting interest and finally repaying the whole debt.

Miller First Mortgage Bonds are based on incomeearning property, such as an apartment house, hotel or office building, worth substantially more than the bond issue. But they are also secured by a first lien on ample earnings, out of which the borrower makes monthly payments to meet semi-annual interest and to pay off, a part of the bonds each year.

In this way funds are always on hand, in advance, to pay interest and principal. Moreover, the security of the bond issue is constantly increasing, since the debt is growing smaller year by year. Mail the coupon below for a booklet, "Creating Good Investments," which fully explains the fundamental safeguards of Miller First Mortgage Bonds, paying the liberal rate of 7% or 7½%.
